Cooking Classes & Restaurants

just outside Kuala Lumpur!!

Driving from downtown KL to Kampong Sungai Penchala took us about 30 minutes. It is a small Malay village located next to the established township of Taman Tun Dr Ismail and close to Mutiara Damansara (IKEA, Tesco and Ikano Power Centre) and Bandar Utama (Utama shopping mall) that were once part of a large oil palm plantation.

Our first stop was the new home of Lazat Cooking House in Penchala Hill. DOH is proud to be the very first travel agent to work with Lazat back in 2007. Their new location is indeed a splendid place, a perfect environment to induce your creativity in cooking. Malaysian cuisine has a lot to offer, not to mention the diversity of cultural influence, but to really excavate on Malay cuisine; it will surely open your eyes! Here at Lazat, Ana - the founder, personally interacts with all her customers, regardless of where they from, most importantly, they have the passion to cook. Here, their hands-on classes are held every Monday to Saturday and presented in English by entertaining Malaysian instructors. Each day of the week they teach a different menu, and provide detailed explanations of ingredients and cooking methods. Students individually prepare their 3-course lunch at their own cooking station, usually consisting of an appetizer, main course, side dish, and dessert. Right after that, it is time to sit down and taste your own creation.

LAZAT COOKING HOUSE

Next, we move on downhill to Subak Restaurant, which is only located 2 to 3 minutes away from Lazat. It is an Asian & Western fusion restaurant opened every Monday to Sunday including public holidays. As you enter the restaurant, the soothing sounds of flowing water from their own fresh water spring, and the natural cacophony of crickets and other jungle dwellers could easily make you feel comfortable. Despite the irritating

Later, we arrived at a restaurant named Muhibbah Seafood Restaurant; it is a fusion kind of restaurant, mixture of Malays, Chinese & Indian cuisines. We ordered three dishes, Chicken fried with dried chili & onion, Stir fried bitter gourd with salted egg and Ma Poh Tofu. The foods was not bad and we had a short break after our lunch.

Do You Know?

Malacca (Malay: Melaka, dubbed "The Historic State") is the third smallest Malaysian state after Perlis and Penang. It is located in the southern region of the Malay Peninsula, next to the Straits of Malacca. It borders Negeri Sembilan to the north and Johor to the south. The capital is Malacca City, which is 148 kilometres (92 miles) south east of Malaysia's capital city Kuala Lumpur, 235 kilometres (146 miles) north west to Johor's largest city Johor Bahru, and 95 km (59 miles) north west to Johor's second largest city, Batu Pahat. This historical city centre has been listed as a UNESCO World Heritage Site since 7 July 2008. Although it was the location of one of the earliest Malay sultanates, the monarchy was abolished when the Portuguese conquered it in 1511. The head of state is the Yang di-Pertua Negeri or Governor, rather than a Sultan.

The next destination was Bayan Indah Cooking House. From the traffic light junction at the main road, we turned into a slightly narrow road within the village houses, about 10 minutes; we arrived at the main entrance of the cooking house. We parked our car at the car porch and walk around the surrounding area. There is a little stream, lots of plants, herbs & spices, a beautiful garden with stepping stones and a small size board room for mini size gathering or meeting. Unlike other cooking house, Bayan Indah's kitchen is more into contemporary style and everything is prepared in small bowls and glasses, measured in a certain proportion and is ready for cooking. They stress on learning in a fun way instead of cracking your head when cooking a dish.

After that, we headed to The Roof, it is the 'IN' place now in Petaling Jaya, around the 1 Utama area and is located right inside First Avenue building. The Roof consists of five outlets, Signature, Score, Malt & Leaf, Play and Stratosphere. Fine dining cuisine, chit-chat place, coffee, clubbing and a hangout place at the top floor 360 panoramic scenery are all here. After a glass of "Christmas in June", we left the place and called it a day, a very nice day!

Relief for the Victims of Typhoon Haiyan

With the help of an agent partner in the Philippines, we at Discovery Overland were able to do our small part in providing relief to some of the victims of Typhoon Haiyan. Following the announcement by the relevant authorities that it was safe to return to Tacloban, and with funds collected from the staff and management of DOH, we were able to sponsor ferry tickets for a family of 6 to return home, to start a new life.
